Foundational Leadership Series

Deadline to RSVP: October 30, 2020

Throughout the fall quarter, SOMeCA offers the Foundational Leadership Series that supports you, as a student leader, in having a successful academic year. As student leaders of your community, you are constantly adapting to an ever-changing and complex environment. Your student organizations are learning spaces filled with opportunities for you and your members to practice addressing challenging and shifting dynamics. Engaging with these challenges, provides you the opportunities to learn skills that not only support your experiences now, but also translate into your future careers post-graduation.

This leadership series is all part of the learning process you will be engaging with at SOMeCA. To find what trainings you need to complete, please view your Path A or B handout.

Communicating with Purpose

This training provides opportunities for student leaders to learn practices that support organizations in having healthy communication.

Authentic Collaboration

This training provides opportunities for student leaders to learn practices that supports organizations in working collaboratively and realizing their goals.

Making Money Moves

This training provides opportunities for students to learn the basics of fiscal management including an overview of various financial documents and procedures as well as understanding an organization's budget.
